

Introduction

There are also hippos
There chameleons are reptiles. They are also hippos chameleons.

They change colour to hide from predators by blending in to their surroundings.

They change colour to hide from predators by blending in to their surroundings.

Appearance

They change colour to communicate with each other (They change colour to hide in some things that they can find to hide from predators) Their tail curl's up when it is injured. It has a bushy, long tail. It's tail's like hard and rocky. It's tail is no row to chancy.
Chameleons curl their tails when they sit on a branch. They can see in both directions.

Chameleon's

By Aino Stone

